Meet Your PADI Course Directors

Allan Nash

PADI Course Director

Allan is an Australian dive industry pioneer who has lived in the Philippines for more than 40 years. He began diving in 1969 during the early years of modern recreational scuba, turning his passion into a professional career by 1985.

In 1987, Allan became a PADI Instructor and went on to achieve the prestigious level of PADI Course Director in 1992, one of the highest leadership roles within the organization. With more than four decades of experience as a scuba trainer and Course Director, he has mentored generations of dive professionals and helped shape the standards of dive training in the region.

Allan is the Owner of El Galleon Resort and Asia Divers in Puerto Galera, widely recognized as the first career dive center in the Philippines. Through his leadership and dedication to safety, education, and professional development, he has played a significant role in the growth and professionalism of the Philippine dive industry

Eleanor (Elly) Hui

PADI Course Director

A Hong Kong native with 11 years of residence in the Philippines, bringing over a decade of active instructional experience to the dive community. Fluent in English, Cantonese, and Mandarin, allowing seamless connection with diverse students from across the globe.

A true water enthusiast—oceans, lakes, and pools are where you'll find the real passion. (Mountains, however, are a different story.) The journey and adventures are well documented across social media, featuring extensive pictures and videos from both professional and personal pursuits.

Johan Blixt

PADI Course Director

Originally from Sweden and now based in Moalboal, Johan Blixt brings over 20 years of professional diving expertise. As a Course Director with the Professional Association of Diving Instructors (PADI), he delivers refined, world-class Instructor Development with precision, leadership, and integrity.
